

50TH ANNIVERSARY SEASON

THE ROSS HISTORICAL SOCIETY / MOYA LIBRARY

invites you to a “First Friday Forenoon” program

The Prohibition Years in Marin No Need to Speak Easy

Local historian and educator John Freeman, will commemorate the centennial of The Volstead Act and Prohibition in Marin and the Bay Area. The thirteen Prohibition years, from 1920 – 1933, have been sensationalized for gang violence, dramatic enforcement against contraband or homemade liquor, and the ingenious ways people used to conceal illicit alcoholic beverages. But in the counties around the Bay: San Francisco, Marin, Alameda and San Mateo, the attitude toward all forms of alcohol was much more tolerant.
